Notes on contributors

Jean-François Baillon teaches film and literature at the English Department of Université Bordeaux Montaigne, France. He has published articles on Ken Loach and Lindsay Anderson and on British horror cinema. He is currently writing a history of British cinema.

Fred Botting is a Professor in English at Kingston University, London. His publications include Gothic, newly released in a second edition (Routledge, 2013), Gothic Romanced (Routledge, 2008) and Limits of Horror (Manchester University Press, 2008).

Elisabeth Bronfen is Professor at the English Department of the University of Zurich. Publications include: Over Her Dead Body: Death, Femininity and the Aesthetic (Manchester University Press, 1992), The Knotted Subject: Hysteria and its Discontents (Princeton University Press, 1998), Home in Hollywood: The Imaginary Geography of Cinema (Columbia University Press, 2004), Specters of War: Hollywood's Engagement with Military Conflict (Rutgers University Press, 2013) and Night Passages: Philosophy, Literature, Film (Columbia University Press, 2013).

Gregory Brophy is an adjunct lecturer in the Department of English at McGill University, Canada. He has recently completed his dissertation 'Graphomania: Composing Subjects in Victorian Gothic Fiction'. He has published in Scope and Victorian Review and is a founding member of the Victorianist blog thefloatingacademy.com.

Steen Christiansen is Associate Professor of English at Aalborg University, Denmark. His research focuses on visual culture, embodiment and media. He has recently published articles on Darren Aronofsky, zombies and post-cinema.

Stephen Curtis is an Associate Lecturer in the Department of English and Creative Writing at Lancaster University, UK, specialising in Shakespeare. His doctoral thesis was entitled An Anatomy of the Tragedy of Blood. His research interests also include contemporary Gothic in various media, and digital theory and literature.

Paul Foster completed his PhD, 'The Gaze and Subjectivity in Fin-de-Siècle Gothic' at the University of Chester and now teaches in further education. He has contributed to a collection of essays on screen adaptations of literature.

Dean Lockwood is a Senior Lecturer in Media Theory in the School of Media, University of Lincoln, UK. His recent research has focused on the role of 'noise' in the affective politics of media ecologies. Cloud Time, a book written with Rob Coley, which extends these concerns to the culture of 'cloud computing', was published by Zero Books in 2012.

Stuart Nolan is a Research Magician in Residence at Pervasive Media Studio and the University of Bristol working on The Mindreading Web. His Mindreading Robots, IdeoBird and OuijaBird, were featured in the BBC Click Christmas Special, The Guardian, and US Wired's special Connectivity 2.0 publication. He works with traditional sleight-of-hand conjuring, psychological illusion, memory feats, sideshow tradition, and bespoke technology. He recently deceived over 700 organisations just to prove a point.

Dorothea Schuller is Subject Librarian for English at Göttingen State and University Library, Germany. She is writing her PhD thesis on H.D. (Hilda Doolittle) and has taught extensively at the English Department of Göttingen University. Her publications include essays on Irvine Welsh's Trainspotting, Shakespeare's cross-dressing comedies and Richard Matheson's, I Am Legend.

Agnieszka Soltysik Monnet is Professor of American Literature and Culture at the University of Lausanne, Switzerland. Her publications include The Poetics and Politics of the American Gothic (Ashgate, 2010) and a co-edited volume with Justin Edwards on Pop Gothic: The Gothic in Contemporary Literature and Popular Culture (Routledge, 2012), as well as articles on the American combat film, queer theory, Edgar Allan Poe, War Gothic and the history of Gothic criticism.

Catherine Spooner is Senior Lecturer in English Literature at Lancaster University, UK, and co-president of the International Gothic Association. Her publications include Fashioning Gothic Bodies (Manchester University Press, 2004), Contemporary Gothic (Reaktion, 2006) and, co-edited with Emma McEvoy, The Routledge Companion to Gothic (2007). She is currently writing Post-Millennial Gothic: Comedy, Romance and the Rise of Happy Gothic for Bloomsbury.

Laurence Talairach-Vielmas is Professor of English at the University of Toulouse (UTM) and associate researcher at the Centre Alexandre Koyré, Paris. Her publications include Moulding the Female Body in Victorian Fairy Tales and Sensation Novels (Ashgate, 2007) and Wilkie Collins, Medicine and the Gothic (The University of Wales Press, 2009). She is also the editor of Mary Elizabeth Braddon's Thou Art the Man (Valancourt Books, 2008).

Nik Taylor is Senior Lecturer in Drama at the University of Huddersfield and co-editor of The Journal of Performance Magic. He is coordinator of the Magic Research Group and currently undertaking research in paranormal entertainment. A mystery entertainer himself, Nik specialises in Bizarre Magic, Sideshow, Séance and Divination. He recently advised on the Thackray Medical Museum's The Magic of Medicine exhibition. He is a member of the International Brotherhood of Magicians and The British Society of Mystery Entertainers.