Notes on contributors

Paul Boyer (†) was Merle Curti Professor of History Emeritus at the University of Wisconsin-Madison (USA). His many book publications include Urban Masses and Moral Order in America, 1820–1920 (Cambridge, Mass., 1978); By the Bomb's Early Light: American Thought and Culture at the Dawn of the Atomic Age (New York, 1985); When Time Shall Be No More. Prophecy Belief in Modern American Culture (Cambridge, Mass., 1992); Fallout: A Historian Reflects on America's Half-Century Encounter with Nuclear Weapons (Columbus, 1998).

Jason Dawsey is Lecturer in Modern European history at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville (USA). Dawsey is the author of 'Where Hitler's name is never spoken: Günther Anders in 1950s Vienna', in Contemporary Austrian Studies, Vol. XXI: Austrian Lives, edited by Günter Bischof, Fritz Plasser and Eva Maltschnig (Innsbruck and New Orleans, 2012). He is also the co-editor (along with Günter Bischof and Bernhard Fetz) of The Life and Work of Günther Anders: Émigré, Iconoclast, Philosopher, Man of Letters (Innsbruck, 2014). He is currently completing a monograph on Günther Anders' critique of modern technology.

Miriam Dobson is Senior Lecturer in Modern History at the University of Sheffield (UK). Her main publications are Khrushchev's Cold Summer: Gulag Returnees, Crime, and the Fate of Reform After Stalin (Ithaca and London, 2009), winner of the 2010 Wayne S. Vucinich Book Prize, and, as co-editor, Reading Primary Sources. The Interpretation of Texts from Nineteenth- and Twentieth-century History (London, 2008). In her current book project, she is exploring the history of Baptist and Pentecostal communities in the Soviet Union.

Daniel Gerster is Researcher (Wissenschaftlicher Mitarbeiter) at the Center for Religion and Modernity of the Westfälische Wilhelms-Universität Münster (Germany). He is author of Friedensdialoge im Kalten Krieg. Eine Geschichte der Katholiken in der Bundesrepublik Deutschland, 1957–1983 (Frankfurt am Main and New York, 2012). He is currently working on a project analysing the impact of boarding schools on German elite formation during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Matthew Grant is Senior Lecturer in History at the University of Essex (UK). He is the author of After the Bomb: Civil Defence and Nuclear War in Britain, 1945–68 (Basingstoke, 2010), and the editor of The British Way in Cold Warfare (London, 2009). He is currently working on a project charting the impact of the Cold War on British cultural and social life.

Eva Horn is Professor of Modern German Literature and Cultural Theory at the German Department of the University of Vienna (Austria). She is the author of The Secret War: Treason, Espionage, and Modern Fiction (Evanston, 2013) and Zukunft als Katastrophe (Frankfurt am Main, 2014), and co-editor, with Anson Rabinbach, of 'Dark powers: conspiracies in history and fiction', New German Critique 103 (2008). Her current research project is a literary history of climate.

Claudia Kemper is Research Fellow at the Institute for Social Research in Hamburg (HIS) (Germany). Her main research interests focus on intellectual and expert groups and organisations, as, for example, in her first book Das Gewissen. Kommunikation und Vernetzung der Jungkonservativen 1919–1925 (Munich, 2010). She is currently preparing for the publication of her second book about the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War (IPPNW).

Lars Nowak is Assistant Professor of Media Studies at the University of Erlangen-Nuremberg (Germany). His main publications are Deformation und Transdifferenz: Freak Show, frühes Kino, Tod Browning (Berlin, 2011) and, as co-editor, KartenWissen: Territoriale Räume zwischen Bild und Diagramm (Wiesbaden, 2012). In his current research project, he is examining the use of photography and film as visualising techniques in ballistics and detonics.

Paul Robinson is Assistant Professor of History at Bridgewater State University (USA). He has published articles in Cold War History and Diplomatic History, as well as essays in The Routledge Handbook of the Cold War (New York, 2014) and The Human Rights Revolution: An International History (New York, 2012). His current book project is Rethinking the Antinuclear Movement, forthcoming from Routledge.

Notes on contributors

Ann Sherif is Professor of East Asian Studies at Oberlin College, Ohio (USA). Her publications include Japan's Cold War: Media, Literature, and the Law (New York, 2009) and Mirror: The Essays and Fiction of Kôda Aya (Honolulu, 1999). Her current research focuses on independent and regional publishers and literature in Cold War Japan.

Benjamin Ziemann is Professor of Modern German History at the University of Sheffield (UK). His many book publications include War Experiences in Rural Germany, 1914–1923 (Oxford and New York, 2007); Contested Commemorations. War Remembrances and Republican Politics in Weimar Germany (Cambridge, 2013); Encounters with Modernity. The Catholic Church in West Germany 1945–1975 (New York, 2014) and, as editor, Peace Movements in Western Europe, Japan and the USA during the Cold War (Essen, 2007).