Notes on contributors

Alessandra Antola recently completed a Ph.D. on Mussolini in photography at Royal Holloway, University of London.

Daniela Baratieri is a Research Fellow at the University of Western Australia. She has recently published Memory and Silences Haunted by Fascism: Italian Colonialism 1930s–1960s (2010).

R.J.B. Bosworth is Senior Research Fellow in History at Jesus College, University of Oxford. He is the author of numerous books, including Mussolini (2002), Mussolini's Italy (2005) and Whispering City: Rome and Its Histories (2011).

Christopher Duggan is Professor of Modern Italian History at the University of Reading. He is the author of many works, including Fascism and the Mafia (1989), Francesco Crispi: from Nation to Nationalism (2002) and The Force of Destiny: A History of Italy since 1796 (2007).

Giuseppe Finaldi teaches History at the University of Western Australia. His most recent publication is 'The Peasants did not Think of Africa: Empire and the Italian State's Pursuit of Legitimacy, 1871–1945', in John MacKenzie (ed.), European Empire and the People (2011).

Stephen Gundle is Professor of Film and Television Studies at the University of Warwick. His most recent books include Bellissima: Feminine Beauty and the Idea of Italy (2007), Mass Culture and Italian Society from Fascism to the Cold War (2008, with David Forgacs), Glamour: A History (2008) and Death and the Dolce Vita: The Dark Side of Rome in the 1950s (2011).

Giuliana Pieri is Reader in Italian and the Visual Arts at Royal Holloway, University of London. Her main research interests are in the fields of post-war Italian popular fiction, Anglo-Italian cultural relations in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and Italian modern art and design.

Eugene Pooley recently completed a Ph.D. on Mussolini and Rome at the University of Reading.

Vanessa Roghi holds a Ph.D. in Contemporary History and has made historical documentaries for RAI 3. She has published on the relationship between history and the audiovisual media and is currently preparing a book for teachers on media literacy and history.

Sofia Serenelli obtained her Ph.D. from UCL in 2008. She specialised in the field of cultural memory and is currently working as teaching fellow in modern Italian History at University College London and the University of Reading.

Simona Storchi is Lecturer in Italian at the University of Leicester. She has worked on early twentieth-century literature and art, inter-war periodicals and magazines and contemporary Italian fiction.