ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Thank you first and foremost to Matthew Frost and Kim Walker at Manchester University Press for their support, guidance, and enthusiasm for the project. Thank you to Barry Forshaw for sharing time and expert knowledge of the field, as well as our many pleasurable and illuminating conversations. Special thanks go to all at Yellow Bird Productions, particularly Eric Hultkvist, Mikael Wallén, Ole Sondberg, and Jon Mankell for the generosity of their time during our correspondence and interviews, and for such a warm welcome in Stockholm. Heartfelt thanks to Left Bank Pictures and in particular to Andy Harries. I am very grateful to Swedish scholars Johan Wopenka and Daniel Brodén, and authors Mari Jungstedt, John Ajvide Lindqvist, and Johan Theorin for their invaluable counsel on the subject of Scandinavian crime fiction. An earlier version of Chapter 5 appeared as 'The Impossibility of Isolation in Wallander', Critical Studies in Television 6: 2 (2011), and parts have previously appeared in Steven Peacock (ed.), Stieg Larsson's Millennium Trilogy: Interdisciplinary Approaches to Nordic Noir on Page and Screen (London: Palgrave Macmillan, 2012). I am grateful to Manchester University Press and Palgrave Macmillan respectively for permission to reprint this material. Thank you to Brandon Pazitka for the cover design. I thank my colleagues at the University of Hertfordshire for their enthusiastic backing, and the QR Research Group for its source of financial support.