The authors

Lynne Pearce is Professor of Literary Theory and Women's Writing at Lancaster University and was Principal Investigator of the AHRC-funded research project, 'Moving Manchester: How the experience of migration has informed writing in Greater Manchester from 1960 to the present' (2006–10). Her previous publications include: Woman/Image/Text: Readings in Pre-Raphaelite Art & Literature (1991); Reading Dialogics (1994); Feminism and the Politics of Reading (1997); Devolving Identities: Feminist Readings in Home & Belonging (ed.) (2000); The Rhetorics of Feminism (2004); Romance Writing (2007). Other publications arising out of the 'Moving Manchester' project include a special issue of The European Journal of Cultural Studies (with Ruth Wodak) entitled Region/Nation/Belonging (2010); a special issue of M/C Journal (with Kath Woodward) entitled 'diasporas' (2011); a special issue of Crossings: A Journal of Migration and Culture (with Maggie O'Neill) (2011); a special issue of Mobilities entitled 'The Urban Imaginary' (2012); a special issue of Interventions entitled 'Cinemas of Displacement and Destitution' (2012). A full list of the articles and chapters she has written in connection with the project is available on the Publications page of the 'Moving Manchester' website at: www.transculturalwriting.com/movingmanchester. [transculturalwriting.com/movingmanchester.]

Corinne Fowler is Director of the Centre for New Writing in the School of English at the University of Leicester where she also lectures in Postcolonial Literature. She was Director of the Arts Council-funded project, 'Grassroutes: Contemporary Leicestershire Writing' (2010–12) and also Research Associate for the AHRC-funded research project, 'Moving Manchester' (2006–10). Her previous publications include: Travel Writing and Ethics. Theory and Practice (2013), edited with Charles Forsdick and Ludmilla Kostova, and Chasing Tales. Travel Writing, Journalism and the History of British Ideas about Afghanistan (2007) together with 'Region/Writing/Home: Relocating British Diasporas', Moving Worlds, 9(2) (2009, edited with Graham Mort). She also writes short stories, including 'The Black Devon' (2009) and co-edited a book of short stories with Muli Amaye and Martin de Mello called Migration Stories (2009) as part of the 'Moving Manchester' project. A full list of the articles and chapters she has written in connection with the project is available on the Publications page of the 'Moving Manchester' website at: www.transculturalwriting.com/movingmanchester.

Robert Crawshaw is Senior Lecturer in French and European Studies at Lancaster University. As co-investigator and initiator of the bid to the AHRC, he brought to the 'Moving Manchester' project an enduring research interest in the interface between literature, mobility and social change reflected in previous publications on the writings of W. G. Sebald and Ismaïl Kadare and in his earlier book Exploring French Text Analysis: Interpretations of National Identity (Routledge, 2000). As a former academic adviser to the European Commission, he had been the director of two research projects in intercultural pragmatics: the ESRC-funded 'Pragmatics and Intercultural Communication Project' (2003–6) and the HEFCE-funded 'Interculture Project (1998–2002). In 2010–11, he was a research fellow at the University of Konstanz and is currently Head of the Department of European Languages and Cultures at Lancaster.