Notes on contributors

Liam Chambers is senior lecturer and head of the Department of History at Mary Immaculate College, Limerick. He is joint editor of Irish Historical Studies.

Willem Frijhoff is emeritus professor in early modern history at Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam, and G.Ph. Verhagen professor of Cultural History at Erasmus University, Rotterdam.

Urban Fink is a historian and theologian specialising in church history, including Swiss Catholicism and the history of the Collegium Germanicum. He holds a doctorate from the University of Fribourg and is a member of the university's Hochschulrat.

Aurélien Girard is assistant professor in early modern history and co-director of the Department of History at the Université de Reims Champagne-Ardenne.

James E. Kelly is St Cuthbert's Society Senior Research Fellow in early modern British and Irish Catholicism at Durham University, as well as principal investigator on the AHRC-funded 'Monks in Motion' project.

Adam Marks completed a PhD dissertation on 'England, the English and the Thirty Years' War (1618–1648)' at the University of St Andrews in 2012 and has published on early modern history.

Thomas O'Connor is professor of history at Maynooth University and editor of Archivium Hibernicum.

Giovanni Pizzorusso is assistant professor in early modern history in the Department of Letters, Arts and Social Sciences at the Università degli Studi 'G. d'Annunzio' Chieti – Pescara.

Michael Questier is Leverhulme Research Professor of History at Queen Mary, University of London.