Notes on contributors

Michaël Amara is Chef de service aux Archives générales du Royaume, National Archives of Belgium. He is the author of Des Belges à l'épreuve de l'Exil: les réfugiés de la Première Guerre mondiale: France, Grande-Bretagne, Pays-Bas, 1914–1918 (Brussels: Éditions de l'Université de Bruxelles, 2008).

Irina Belova is a professor in the Department of National History of Konstantin Tsiolkovsky Kaluga State University, Kaluga, Russian Federation. Her latest book is Vynuzhdennye migranty: bezhentsy i voennoplennyye Pervoi mirovoi voyny v Rossii. 1914–1925 gg. [Forced Migrants, Refugees and Prisoners of War in Russia, 1914–1925] (Moscow: AIRO-XX, 2014).

Alex Dowdall is a temporary lecturer in the cultural history of modern war at the University of Manchester. His article, 'Civilians in the combat zone: Allied and German evacuation policies at the Western Front, 1914–1918' appeared in First World War Studies in 2015. He is currently completing a monograph on civilian communities under fire at the Western Front.

Francesco Frizzera is affiliated with the University of Trento where he completed a PhD on refugees during the First World War. He is currently preparing this for publication. In 2013–15 he was a member of the research team, 'World War I 1914–1918' at the Italian-German Historical Institute in Trento.

Peter Gatrell is Professor of Economic History at the University of Manchester. His books include A Whole Empire Walking: Refugees in Russia during World War 1 (Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 1999), and The Making of the Modern Refugee (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2013).

Martina Hermann is the Director of the Austrian Cultural Institut, Bern, Switzerland. She is the author of 'Fremd im eigenen Staat? Zur Perzeption der Kriegsflüchtlinge und -evakuierten im Barackenlager Gmund während des Ersten Weltkrieges', in Stefan Karner and Philipp Lesiak (eds), Erster Weltkrieg: Globaler Konflikt – lokale Folgen (Innsbruck: StudienVerlag, 2014).

Rebekah Klein-Pejšová is Associate Professor of History and Jewish Studies at Purdue University. She is the author of Mapping Jewish Loyalties in Interwar Slovakia (Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 2015). Her current research concerns postwar Jewish displacement, dispersion, and contact across the Iron Curtain.

Mariusz Korzeniewski is a professor of history attached to the Institute of History at the Maria Skłodowska-Curie University (UMCS) in Lublin. His latest monograph (co-authored with M. Mądzik, K. Latawiec, D. Tarasiuk) is Polacy na wschodniej Ukrainie w latach 1832–1921 [Poles in Eastern Ukraine in the years 1832–1921] (Lublin: Wydawnictwo UMCS, 2012).

Ruth Leiserowitz is the Director of the German Historical Institute, Warsaw. Her many publications include Sabbatleuchter und Kriegerverein: Juden in der ostpreussisch-litauischen Grenzregion 1812–1942 (Osnabrück: Fibre, 2010).

Marco Mondini is a researcher at the Italian–German Historical Institute in Trento and Adjunct Professor in Contemporary History at the University of Padua. His latest book is La guerra italiana: Partire, raccontare, tornare 1914–1918 (Bologna: Società editrice il Mulino, 2014).

Oleksiy Nestulya is Rector of Poltava University of Economics and Trade. His many publications include Ohorona pamjatok istoriji i kulturi v Ukraini (1917–1919 rr.): Zbirnik dokumentiv i materialiv [The Defence of Historical and Cultural Memorials in Ukraine, 1917–1919] (Kyiv, 2008).

Klaus Richter is a lecturer in history at the University of Birmingham. His publications include Antisemitismus in Litauen. Christen, Juden und die 'Emanzipation' der Bauern, 1889–1914 (Berlin: Metropol, 2013), and a chapter on population politics in Lithuania, 1916–23, in Tomas Balkelis and Violeta Davoliūtė (eds), Population Displacement in Lithuania in the Twentieth Century: Experiences, Identities and Legacies (Leiden: Brill, 2016).

Emilia Salvanou teaches European history at the Hellenic Open University. She has been a post-doctoral fellow at the University of Athens working on refugee memory during the interwar period and a research associate at the Act Aristeia studying the historiography of the First World War.

Danilo Šarenac is a research fellow at the Institute of Contemporary History, Belgrade. In 2014 he published the monograph, Top, vojnik i sećanj: Srbija i Prvi svetski rat, 1914–2009 [Cannon, Soldier and Memory: Serbia and the First World War 1914–2009] (Beograd: Institut za savremenu istoriju, 2014). He has also co-edited with Vladimir Tomić a photo-monograph: A City Surprised. Belgrade in the Great War 1914–1915 (Belgrade: Muzej grada Beograda, Institut za savremenu istoriju, 2015).

Uğur Ümit Üngör is Associate Professor at the Department of History at Utrecht University and Research Fellow at the Institute for War, Holocaust, and Genocide Studies in Amsterdam. In addition to The Making of Modern Turkey: Nation and State in Eastern Anatolia, 1913–1950 (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2011), he has recently published Genocide: New Perspectives on its Causes, Courses and Consequences (Amsterdam: Amsterdam University Press 2016).

Nikolai Vukov is Associate Professor at the Institute of Ethnology and Folklore Studies in Sofia and also teaches at the universities of Sofia and Plovdiv. Among his recent publications is 'Resettlement waves, historical memory and identity construction: the case of Thrace refugees to Bulgaria', in H. Vermeulen, et al. (eds), Migration in the Southern Balkans: from Ottoman Territory to Globalized Nation States (Amsterdam: Amsterdam University Press, 2014).

Liubov Zhvanko is Professor of History and Cultural Studies at the O.M. Beketov National University of Urban Economy, Kharkiv, Ukraine. Among her many publications is Bizhentsi pershoi svitovoi viini: ukrains'kii vimir, 1914–1918 rr. [Refugees of the First World War: the Ukrainian Reality, 1914–18] (Kharkiv: Aposotrof, 2012).