

Contents

List of figures and tables	page ix
Contributors	xi
Acknowledgements	xv
Introduction: Ireland and its relationship with migration Allen White and Mary Gilmartin	1
Part I Networks
1 Transnational networks across generations: childhood visits to Ireland by the second generation in England Bronwen Walter	17
2 ‘Two Irelands beyond the sea’: exploring long-distance loyalist networks in the 1880s William Jenkins	36
3 Migrant integration and the ‘network-making power’ of the Irish Catholic Church Breda Gray	55
4 Ireland’s diaspora strategy: diaspora for development? Mark Boyle, Rob Kitchin and Delphine Ancien	80
5 Transnational media networks and the ‘migration nation’ Aphra Kerr, Rebecca King-O’Riain and Gavan Titley	98

Part II Belonging

- 6 Children's words, children's worlds: exploring the experiences of migrant children in Ireland 117
Allen White, Naomi Tyrrell, Fina Carpena-Méndez and Caitríona Ní Laoire
- 7 African migrants in Ireland: the negotiation of belonging and family life 132
Liam Coakley
- 8 (Re)negotiating belonging: the Irish in Australia 147
Patricia M. O'Connor
- 9 Betwixt, between and belonging: negotiating identity and place in asylum seeker direct provision accommodation centres 164
Angèle Smith

Part III Intersections

- 10 A countertopography of migrant experience in Ireland and beyond 183
Deirdre Conlon
- 11 Unbounding migration studies: the intersections of language, space and time 199
Bettina Migge and Mary Gilmartin
- 12 Context, scale and generation: the constructions of belonging 213
Jamie Goodwin-White
- Conclusion: the place of migration 228
Mary Gilmartin and Allen White
- Index* 241