Co-editors

Paul Delaney is Lecturer in Irish Writing in the School of English, Trinity College, Dublin. His publications include the edited collection Reading Colm Tóibín (Liffey Press, 2008), and essays and chapters on Daniel Corkery, Seán O’Faoláin, Frank O’Connor, Elizabeth Bowen and Mary Lavin. He has also written widely on cultural representations of Irish Travellers. He is currently completing a book on Seán O’Faoláin in the 1930s for Irish Academic Press.

Contributors

Derek Hand teaches in the English Department in St Patrick’s College, Drumcondra. He has published articles on W.B. Yeats, Elizabeth Bowen, Colum McCann, Molly Keane and on contemporary Irish fiction, and has lectured on Irish writing in the USA, Portugal, Sweden, Singapore and France. His

Heidi Hansson is Professor of English Literature at Umeå University, Sweden. Her main research interest is women’s literature, and she has published in the fields of postmodern romance, nineteenth-century women’s cross-gendered writing, and Irish women’s literature. Her publications include Emily Lawless 1845–1913: Writing the Interspace (Cork University Press, 2007) and the edited collection Irish Nineteenth-Century Women’s Prose: New Contexts and Readings (Cork University Press, 2008). She is the leader of an interdisciplinary project about foreign travellers to northern Scandinavia in the nineteenth century, and is working on a study of gendered writing about the region. She has recently published articles about the novelist Anne Enright, and is currently working on a study of Land War fiction and intertextuality as well as a study of Emily Lawless’s short fiction and nature writing.

Tom Herron is Lecturer in English and Irish Literature in the School of Cultural Studies at Leeds Metropolitan University. He is the co-author, with John Lynch, of After Bloody Sunday: Representation, Ethics, Justice (Cork University Press, 2007). His co-edited collection of poetry, The Harrowing of the Heart (with Julieann Campbell) was launched in Derry’s Guildhall on 30 January 2008 to mark the thirty-sixth anniversary of Bloody Sunday. He edited the new edition of Louis MacNeice’s I Crossed the Minch (Birlinn, 2008). Most recently he edited Irish Writing London (Bloomsbury, 2013). He is currently working on a study of the place of poetry in the public realm.

Hermione Lee is President of Wolfson College, Oxford, and Professor of English at Oxford University. She is a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, a Fellow of the British Academy and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and an Honorary Fellow of St Hilda’s, New, and St Cross Colleges, Oxford. In 2003 she was made a Companion of the British Empire for Services to Literature. Her publications include biographies of Virginia Woolf and Edith Wharton, books on Elizabeth Bowen, Philip Roth and Willa Cather, a collection of essays on life-writing, Body Parts, and A Very Short Introduction to Biography for Oxford University Press. She reviews and broadcasts regularly. She is currently writing a biography of Penelope Fitzgerald.

George O’Brien is Emeritus Professor of English at Georgetown University, Washington, DC. His publications include the trilogy The Village of Longing (Lilliput Press, 1987), Dancehall Days (Blackstaff, 1994) and Out of Our Minds (Blackstaff, 1995). He is a contributor to the two-volume Cambridge History of Irish Literature (2006), and his many other publications include a book on sport, Playing the Field (New Island, 2000), and two works on Brian Friel, Brian Friel (Gill & Macmillan, 1990) and Brian Friel: A Reference Guide 1962–1992.

Lance Pettitt is Professor of Screen Media at St Mary’s University College, London and Director of its Centre for Irish Studies. A former Visiting Professor at the Universities of Barcelona and Sao Paulo, he is co-editor (with Beatriz Kopschitz Bastos) of The Uncle Jack/O Tio Jack, by John T. Davis (Sao Paulo: USP/Humanitas, 2011) and – the second in this bilingual series – The Woman Who Married Clark Gable, by Thaddeus O’Sullivan (forthcoming 2013). This book has a companion, two-disk DVD featuring a digitally remastered selection of O’Sullivan’s films from the 1970s and 1980s published by the Irish Film Institute, Dublin. He is also the author of Screening Ireland: Film, Television and New Media Representation (Manchester University Press, 2000; revised second edition forthcoming 2014), a study of fiction-to-film adaptation, December Bride (Cork University Press, 2001), and essays in Éire-Ireland (2008) and Irish Studies Review (2011).