THE CONTRIBUTORS

Chiara Betta teaches Chinese language and culture at the University of Indianapolis in Athens (Greece). She received a Ph.D. from the School of Oriental and African Studies, London, in 1997 with a dissertation on 'Silas Aaron Hardoon, 1851–1931: Marginality and Adaptation in Shanghai', which is being revised for publication.

Robert Bickers is Lecturer in East Asian and Colonial History at the University of Bristol. He has published various papers on the history of Sino-British relations and is the author of Britain in China: Community, Culture and Colonialism, 1900–49 (1999).

Barbara J. Brooks teaches history at the City College of the City University of New York. Having completed Japan's Imperial Diplomacy: Consuls, Treaty Ports and War in China, 1895–1945 (forthcoming), she is writing a book about the culture of Japanese settlement in Korea and treaty port China.

John Darwin is a fellow of Nuffield College, Oxford, and the author of Britain and Decolonisation: the Retreat from Empire in the Post-war World (1988) and The End of the British Empire: the Historical Debate (1991).

Alain Delissen is Associate Professor of Korean History at the Ecole des hautes études en sciences sociales, working on Korean urban history, and in particular the twentieth-century history of Seoul. He is preparing for publication Seoul Urban Landscapes and Korean National Identity.

Joshua A. Fogel is Professor of History at the University of California, Santa Barbara. His most recent publications include The Literature of Travel in the Japanese Rediscovery of China, 1862–1945 (1996) and an edited volume, The Nanjing Massacre in History and Historiography (forthcoming).

Christian Henriot is Professor of East Asian history at Lumière-Lyon 2 University and a fellow of the Institut Universitaire de France. He serves as director of the Institut d'Asie Orientale (France) and is the author of various books on the history of Shanghai: Shanghai, 1927–1937: Municipal Power, Locality, and Modernization (1993), (with A. Roux) Le Shanghai des années 30 (1998) and Belles de Shanghai: prostitution et sexualité en Chine aux XIXe–XXe siècles (1997: forthcoming in English translation).

Françoise Kreissler is an associate professor at the Université Paris 3 (Sorbonne Nouvelle) and the author of L'Action culturelle allemande en Chine de la fin du XIXe siècle à la Seconde Guerre mondiale (1989). She is preparing her thèse d'Etat on the German community in Shanghai.

Claude Markovits, Directeur de Recherche at the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, Paris, is the author of Indian Business and National- ist Politics, 1931–1939 (1985) and of The Global World of Indian Merchants 1750–1947: Traders of Sind from Bukhara to Panama (forthcoming). He also edited Histoire de L'Inde moderne, 1480–1950 (1994).

THE CONTRIBUTORS

Christopher Munn completed his doctorate at the University of Toronto in 1998. His book Anglo-China: Chinese People and British Rule in Nineteenth-Century Hong Kong will be published in 2000.

Marcia R. Ristaino is a China specialist at the US Library of Congress and author of numerous works on modern and contemporary China. She formerly served on the faculties of the University of Maryland and of Trinity College, Washington DC.

Mark F. Wilkinson received his doctorate from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor in 1982. He is Professor of History at Virginia Military Institute, where he teaches American foreign relations and modern East Asian history. His essays on the Shanghai American community have appeared in The Southeast Review of Asian Studies (1995) and in Larry Bland, ed., George C. Marshall's Mediation Mission to China (1998). He is preparing a book on the internment of foreigners in Shanghai during the Second World War and continuing his research into the Shanghai Americans during the years of the Chinese civil war.

Judith Wyman works as Senior Program Manager for the Hubert H. Humphrey Fellowship Program at the Institute of International Education in Washington DC.