Acknowledgements

This volume is the result of several years' worth of co-organised sessions at the International Medieval Congress in Leeds. We are indebted to the Congress team and to all of our speakers—those represented in this volume and those not—for allowing us time and space to discuss the early medieval riddle tradition in depth and with such welcoming enthusiasm. We would especially like to thank Victoria Symons for her assistance at the early stages of this volume's planning, and for co-writing the Introduction with us.

The team at Manchester University Press have been extremely helpful throughout the publication process, and we would like to thank Meredith Carroll and this series' editors and reviewers for their valuable feedback and suggestions.

Finally, we would like to acknowledge the support of our families as we worked toward the completion of this volume. Megan would like to dedicate it to James and the Seacaves (what a band name that would be!), especially to Buttons and to little Aoife—who did not even exist at the start of this volume's life. Jennifer would like to thank Carlos (again) for staying and waiting, and Caitlin and Sophie for their patience with a mother who kept shutting herself in the study: leoð is asungen. All errors should be attributed to Romeo, who has stepped on the keyboard and blocked the view of the monitor far too many times.

Megan Cavell and Jennifer Neville