Acknowledgements

We gratefully acknowledge funding from the Sustainable Consumption Institute (SCI) at the University of Manchester to carry out the research on which this book is based. Other colleagues at the SCI worked with us on the same data and participated in discussions about various aspects of the material; thanks to Helen Holmes, Jo Mylan, Dale Southerton, Dan Welch and Luke Yates. We thank Dan Welch especially for allowing us to draw on material about the UK Foodservices sector from an unpublished working paper of his, 'Political Economy and Sustainability in the UK Food Service Sector'. We benefited enormously throughout from the stimulating and collegial atmosphere in the SCI and the support offered to us by its management teams and its administrative staff.

We are also grateful to participants in a final workshop which presented key results from the project in April 2018. As a result, we enjoyed helpful discussion of aspects of the project and received detailed comments on part of the manuscript from Bente Halkier and Lydia Martens. Lydia, who was the co-author of the book based on the initial project (Warde and Martens, 2000), has also been involved as an advisor to the project throughout. We say a special thanks to her.

We have also learned much from discussions about our material at the conferences of the British Sociological Association and the European Sociological Association and at seminars in a dozen or more universities in Europe and the UK.

Very sincere thanks to Jukka Gronow who graciously agreed to read the whole manuscript and who offered valuable comments and insightful suggestions for its improvement.

Alan Warde, Jessica Paddock and Jennifer Whillans
Manchester and Bristol
July 2019