Notes on contributors

Carol Banks is Associate Lecturer in English at the University of Central Lancashire. She has published several articles on Shakespeare's plays addressing issues of gender, textuality, imagery and the visual arts.

Dermot Cavanagh is Lecturer in English at the University of Edinburgh and the author of Language and Politics in the Sixteenth-Century History Play (2003).

Alison Findlay is Professor of Renaissance Drama at Lancaster University. She is author of Illegitimate Power: Bastards in Renaissance Drama (1994) and A Feminist Perspective on Renaissance Drama (1999). She has just completed Playing Spaces in Early Women's Drama, to be published by Cambridge University Press, and is currently working on Women in Shakespeare for Continuum Press.

Stuart Hampton-Reeves is Principal Lecturer in English and Drama at the University of Central Lancashire. His publications include Shakespeare in Performance: The Henry VI Plays, co-written with Carol Chillington Rutter. He is the performance editor for the journal Shakespeare.

Graham Holderness is Professor of English at the University of Hertfordshire and author or editor of numerous studies in early modern and modern literature and drama, most recently Textual Shakespeare: Writing and the Word (2003). He is also a creative writer whose novel The Prince of Denmark was published in 2002 and whose poetry collection Craeft (2002) was awarded a Poetry Book Society recommendation.

Peter Holland is McMeel Family Professor in Shakespeare Studies in the Department of Film, Television and Theatre at the University of Notre Dame. He is Editor of Shakespeare Survey and General Editor (with Stanley Wells) of the Oxford Shakespeare Topics series for Oxford University Press and of the Redefining British Theatre History series for Palgrave Macmillan. He is currently editing Coriolanus for the Arden Shakespeare 3rd Series.

Lisa Hopkins is Professor of English at Sheffield Hallam University. Her most recent publications are Beginning Shakespeare (2005) and Shakespeare on the Edge (2005). She is currently editing The Broken Heart and The Fancies, Chaste and Noble for the Oxford Complete John Ford.

John J. Joughin is Professor of English at the University of Central Lancashire. He is the editor of several books on Shakespeare, including Shakespeare and National Culture and Philosophical Shakespeares and edits the journal Shakespeare.

Stephen Longstaffe is a lecturer in English and Drama at St Martin's College Lancaster and has published widely on the English history play in journals such as Shakespeare Quarterly and Year's Work in English Studies. He is the editor of A Critical Edition of the Life and Death of Jack Straw (2002).

Carol Chillington Rutter, Professor of English at the University of Warwick, is the author of Clamorous Voices: Shakespeare's Women Today (1988) and Enter the Body: Women and Representation on Shakespeare's Stage (2001). General editor of the Shakespeare in Performance Series for Manchester University Press, she is co-author of Shakespeare in Performance: The Henry VI plays, has edited Documents of the Rose Playhouse (1984) for the Revels Plays Companion Library and has written the Introduction to the Penguin Macbeth (2005). Her current project is Shakespeare and Child's Play.

Alison Thorne is Senior Lecturer in English at the University of Strathclyde. She is the author of Vision and Rhetoric in Shakespeare (Palgrave, 2000), editor of Shakespeare's Romances (2002) for the New Casebook series and co-editor of a forthcoming collection on Renaissance Rhetoric, Gender and Politics (2006). She is currently writing a monograph on female supplication in early modern drama and culture.

Richard Wilson is Professor of English Literature at the University of Cardiff and the 2006 International Shakespeare's Globe Fellow. His publications include Will Power: Essays on Shakespearean authority (revised edition, 2007), Secret Shakespeare: Studies in theatre, religion and resistance (2004), and King of Shadows: Shakespeare in French theory (2006). He is currently completing a new collection of essays, Free Will: Essays on Shakespearean autonomy.

Jessica Winston is Assistant Professor of English at Idaho State University, where she is completing a book on the literary culture of the mid-Tudor Inns of Court. Her essays on this topic appear in Studies in Philology, Early Theatre and Renaissance Quarterly.