Contributors

Jakub Drábik works at the Institute of History within the Slovak Academy of Sciences, and teaches at the Masaryk University in Brno. He is an expert on the history of fascism, particularly British and Czech fascism, and his research also touches on aspects of post-1945 Czechoslovak history. He is the author of two books in Czech and one in Slovak about the history of fascism.

Christian Goeschel is a senior lecturer in modern European history at the University of Manchester and a former visiting fellow at the European University Institute in Florence. His publications include Suicide in Nazi Germany (Oxford University Press, 2009; German translation Suhrkamp, 2011), and Mussolini and Hitler: The Forging of the Fascist Alliance (Yale University Press, 2018; with Italian, German and Danish editions published in 2019).

Helen Goethals is Professor of Commonwealth Studies at the University of Toulouse 2 – Jean Jaurès. She has published widely on the links between poetry and politics, and is currently preparing an anthology of poems written in response to the Munich Crisis.

Gabriel Gorodetsky is a Quondam Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford, and Professor Emeritus at Tel Aviv University. He has published widely on the history of Soviet foreign policy. Most recently, he edited and annotated The Complete Maisky Diaries, 3 volumes (Yale University Press, 2018). A compendium volume, The Maisky Diaries: Red Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, was published by Yale University Press in 2015.

List of contributors

Julie V. Gottlieb is Professor of Modern History at the University of Sheffield. She has published extensively on politics, gender and culture in interwar Britain, including two monographs: Feminine Fascism: Women in Britain's Fascist Movement 1923–1945 (I.B. Tauris, 2000) and Guilty Women, Foreign Policy and Appeasement in Interwar Britain (Palgrave Macmillan, 2015). This is her third collaboration as editor with Richard Toye. Her chapter in this collection draws on research for her project 'Suicide, Society and Crisis', supported by a Wellcome Seed Award (2017–19). With the assistance of Liam Liburd and funding from the Max Batley Legacy, she hosted the conference, from which this collection emerged, in June 2018, at the University of Sheffield.

Mary Heimann is Chair of Modern History at Cardiff University. She is an expert in both Czechoslovak and British history and is best known as the author of Czechoslovakia: The State That Failed (Yale University Press, 2009), Československo – stát, který zklamal (Petrkov, 2020) and Catholic Devotion in Victorian England (Oxford University Press, 1995).

Daniel Hucker is Assistant Professor of History at the University of Nottingham. He is the author of numerous articles, as well as Public Opinion and the End of Appeasement in Britain and France (Ashgate, 2011) and, most recently, Public Opinion and Twentieth-Century Diplomacy (Bloomsbury, 2020).

Miklos Lojko is Associate Professor of Modern History at Eotvos Lorand University, Budapest and visiting faculty member at the Central European University. His publications include Meddling in Middle Europe: Britain and the 'Lands Between', 1919–1925 (CEU Press, 2006); 'Retrenchment at Home and Abroad: The Political, Economic and Intellectual Background to the British Retreat from Central Europe and the Balkans in the Early Interwar Years', European Journal of English Studies, 14:3 (2010), and 'The Age of Illusion? The Department of Overseas Trade Between the Two World Wars: Three Case Studies', in John Fisher, Effie G.H. Pedaliu and Richard Smith (eds), The Foreign Office, Commerce and British Foreign Policy in the Twentieth Century (Palgrave Macmillan, 2016).

Andrew Preston is Professor of American History and a Fellow of Clare College at Cambridge University. He is the author or editor of seven books, including Sword of the Spirit, Shield of Faith: Religion in American War and Diplomacy (Alfred A. Knopf, 2012) and, most recently, American Foreign Relations: A Very Short Introduction (Oxford University Press, 2019).

List of contributors

Michal Shapira is Associate Professor in the History Department at Tel Aviv University, and visiting Professor at Columbia University in 2020. Her research deals with the legacies of the Second World War and the history of psychology in Europe and beyond. She focuses on total war, gender, and the development of expert culture in twentieth-century Britain. She has authored many articles and chapters, and her monograph The War Inside: Psychoanalysis, Total War and the Making of the Democratic Self in Postwar Britain (Cambridge University Press, 2015) was shortlisted for the Royal Historical Society Whitfield Prize and for the Gradiva Book Award, National Association for the Advancement of Psychoanalysis.

Richard Toye is Professor of Modern History at the University of Exeter. He is a specialist in the history of rhetoric and is the author of numerous articles and several books, including Rhetoric: A Very Short Introduction (Oxford University Press, 2013) and The Roar of the Lion: The Untold Story of Churchill's World War II Speeches (Oxford University Press, 2013). His most recent monograph is Winston Churchill: A Life in the News (Oxford University Press, 2020).

Karina Urbach has been, since 2015, a member at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton. She is also a fellow at the Institute of Historical Research at the University of London. In 2015 she published Go-Betweens for Hitler (Oxford University Press), in 2017 the historical novel Cambridge 5 and, in 2020, Das Buch Alice (The Book of Alice). It shows how Nazi publishing houses erased their Jewish authors.

Jessica Wardhaugh is Associate Professor in French Studies at the University of Warwick. She has published widely on street politics, popular theatre, and ideas of local, national and European communities, and is currently researching the importance of play in modern French politics. Recent publications include an edited volume, Politics and the Individual in France, 1930–50 (Legenda, 2015), and a monograph, Popular Theatre and Political Utopia in France, 1870–1940: Active Citizens (Palgrave Macmillan, 2017).