Acknowledgements

Our thanks are due to a number of people who have been helpful in the preparation of this book. We are particularly grateful to Andrew Eaton for a valuable interview outlining the formation and working of Revolution Films, the company responsible for Michael Winterbottom's remarkable output, and we also thank Amy Jackson at the Revolution office for her help. Others who should be thanked include: John Oliver of the Catalogue Department of the British Film Institute; Andrew Spicer, of the University of the West of England, for clarifying Winterbottom's Bristol locations; Judith Armstrong for translating various French passages with more facility than we could have mustered; Kerry O'Hagan for editorial advice; and Monash colleagues, Con Verevis, Melinda Hildebrandt, Adrian Martin and David Sheehy. We are grateful to Accent Film Entertainment and Madman Entertainment, the Australian distributors of, respectively, 9 Songs and A Cock and Bull Story. We also thank Matthew Frost and the team at Manchester for their work in putting this book together. Nearer home, we should like to thank Anna, Maddie and Ella Williams and Geraldine McFarlane for their support and patience.