Lesley's University of Melbourne McKenzie Postdoctoral Research Fellowship (2012–2014) provided necessary research funding for this project. RMIT University and Monash University supported Lesley during some of the writing and revisions of the manuscript. The University of Queensland and the Rotary Foundation supported Erica Rose during the fieldwork she conducted for this project, and Queensland University of Technology supported her during the writing process.

This book includes some excerpts from and revised versions of sections of the following article: L. J. Pruitt, 'Gendering the study of children and youth in peacebuilding', Peacebuilding, 3 (2015), pp. 157–70. Lesley is thankful to the editors of that journal, the editors of the special issue in which the article appeared and the anonymous reviewers of the article for their constructive feedback, which strengthened the writing on this project.

We are so grateful to the many generous friends and colleagues who have offered guidance, advice and support throughout this research project. Particular thanks go to: Chris Agius, Tim Aistrophe, Marshall Beier, Helen Berents, Roland Bleiker, Birgit Bräuchler, Volker Boege, Mark Chou, Constance Duncombe, David Duriesmith, Sara Houston, Katrina Lee-Koo, Serge Loode, Ross Marlay, Siobhan McEvoy-Levy, Sara Meger, Florence Nulens, Avery Dorothy Howard Poole, Ceridwen Spark and Leslie Wirpsa.

We are also thankful to all of the Manchester University Press team and the anonymous reviewers who have offered constructive suggestions and feedback that have helped significantly improve our work. We hope we have adequately addressed all of their thoughtful ideas, and any errors that may remain are our own.

In sum, we would like to thank the pioneering scholars and practitioners who have stretched their imaginations and their bodies before us. We are grateful to our long-serving mentors and colleagues for their wisdom and insight. Thank you to our families and partners who stand by us in our scholarship and practice. We would also like to acknowledge our children and the inspiration they provide to create a more peaceful and dance-filled world. Finally, we are very grateful to all of the research participants and the young people around the world who are working to dance through the dissonance and embody peace.
