Notes on contributors

ALEX W. BARBER is Assistant Professor of Early Modern British History at Durham University. He has published articles in Parliamentary History and History. His Communication of Sin: The Lapse of Licensing and the Circulation of Religious and Political Dissent in England, 1690–1720 is forthcoming from Boydell.

CHRIS BARKER is Assistant Professor of Political Science at the American University in Cairo and a former postdoctoral fellow with the George Washington Forum. His first book is Educating Liberty: Democracy and Aristocracy in J.S. Mill's Political Thought (2018). He has also published articles in Contemporary Political Theory, Review of Politics, History of European Ideas and American Political Thought.

DAVID COMO is Professor of History at Stanford University. He is the author of Radical Parliamentarians and the English Civil War (2018) and Blown by the Spirit: Puritanism and the Emergence of an Antinomian Underground in Pre-Civil-War England (2004). His articles have appeared in Journal of British Studies, Past & Present, English Historical Review, Huntington Library Quarterly, Journal of Ecclesiastical History and Historical Journal.

GREG CONTI is Assistant Professor of Politics at Princeton University. His first book is Parliament the Mirror of the Nation: Representation, Deliberation and Democracy in Victorian Britain (2019). His articles have appeared in History of Political Thought, Journal of British Studies, Modern Intellectual History, History of European Ideas and Political Theory.

KARL GUNTHER is Associate Professor of History at the University of Miami. He is author of Reformation Unbound: Protestant Visions of Reform in England, 1525–1590 (2014), which was a finalist for the Royal Historical Society's Whitefield Prize and runner-up for the American Society of Church History's Brewer Prize. His articles have appeared in Past &

Present, Journal of Ecclesiastical History, History Compass and Archiv für Reformationsgeschichte.

ROBERT G. INGRAM is Professor of History at Ohio University and director of the George Washington Forum on American Ideas, Politics and Institutions. He is the author of Reformation without End: Religion, Politics and the Past in Post-revolutionary England (2018) and Religion, Reform and Modernity: Thomas Secker and the Church of England (2007). He has co-edited three books, including God in the Enlightenment (2016), Between Sovereignty and Anarchy: The Politics of Violence in the American Revolutionary Era (2015) and Religious Identities in Britain, 1660–1832 (2005).

PETER LAKE is University Distinguished Professor of History at Vanderbilt University and a Fellow of the British Academy. A Ford Lecturer in British History at Oxford, he is the author of eight books, including How Shakespeare Put Politics on the Stage (2017); Bad Queen Bess? Libels, Secret Histories and the Politics of Publicity in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth I (2015); The Antichrist's Lewd Hat (2002); The Boxmaker's Revenge (2001); and Moderate Puritans and the Elizabethan Church (1982).

JOANNE PAUL is Lecturer in Early Modern History at the University of Sussex. She is the author of Thomas More (2016) and Counsel and Command in Early Modern English Thought (forthcoming). She has co-edited (with Helen Graham-Matheson) Queenship and Counsel in the Early Modern World (2017) and Governing Diversities: Democracy, Diversity and Human Nature (2012). Her articles have appeared in Hobbes Studies, Renaissance Studies and Renaissance Quarterly.

JASON PEACEY is Professor of History at UCL. He is the author of Print and Public Politics in the English Revolution (2013) and Politicians and Pamphleteers: Propaganda in the English Civil Wars and Interregnum (2004). He has also co-edited (with Chris Kyle) Parliament at Work (2002) and edited The Regicides and the Execution of Charles I (2001). He has published many articles and book chapters, some of which have appeared in the Journal of British Studies, Historical Journal, English Historical Review, Historical Research, Media History, Parliamentary History and The Seventeenth Century.

PATRICK PEEL is Lecturer in Political Science at the University of Michigan and a former postdoctoral fellow with the George Washington Forum. He teaches courses on political theory, American political development and law and has published articles in Justice System Journal and Political Research Quarterly. He is currently writing a book on the populist use of American state courts for building and reviving republican democracy.

MAX SKJÖNSBERG is a Postdoctoral Research Associate at the University of Liverpool, working on a collaborative project on libraries and reading communities in the eighteenth-century Atlantic world. He was formerly an Associate Lecturer at the University of St Andrews and the University of York, and David Hume Fellow at the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities at the University of Edinburgh. He has published in the Historical Journal, Journal of British Studies, Modern Intellectual History, History of Political Thought, European Journal of Political Theory and History of European Ideas, and his first book – The Persistence of Party: Ideas of Harmonious Discord in Eighteenth-century Britain – is forthcoming with Cambridge University Press in 2021.

ANN THOMSON is Professor of European Intellectual History at the European University Institute. Her books include L'âme des Lumières: Le débat sur l'être humain entre religion et science Angleterre-France (1690–1760) (2013), Bodies of Thought: Science, Religion and the Soul in the Early Enlightenment (2008) and Barbary and Enlightenment: European Attitudes towards the Maghreb in the 18th Century (1987). She has also published more than five dozen book chapters and three dozen articles.

DAVID WOMERSLEY is Thomas Warton Professor of English Literature at the University of Oxford and a Fellow of the British Academy. His books include Divinity and State (2010); Gibbon and the 'Watchmen of the Holy City': The Historian and His Reputation, 1776–1814 (2002) and The Transformation of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire (1988). He is the general editor of Oxford University Press's Writings and Correspondence of Edward Gibbon and was general editor of the Cambridge Edition of the Works of Jonathan Swift. He has produced thirteen critical editions of eighteenth-century works and edited another five collections of essays.