Acknowledgements

A primary acknowledgement is due to the many authors and researchers whose work I have cited in this book or otherwise consulted.

I have appreciated assistance, advice and input from a number of friends and colleagues, ranging from practical suggestions to reviews of draft chapters, even when they might disagree with my general approach. I should stress that none of these shares responsibility for the interpretations and perspectives presented in this book, nor my errors and omissions. They include: Matthew Adams, Alison Betts, Stephen Bourke, Michael Cook, Fred Donner, James Fraser, Raphael Greenberg, Oystein LaBianca, Oded Lipschits, Bill Loader, Jamie Lovell, Craigie Macfie, Frances Mayall, Jeremy Mynott, John Palmer, Daniel Potts, Garry Trompf, Ian Tyrrell, Alan Walmsley, Alan Williams, Wolfgang Zwickel and anonymous publisher’s readers; with acknowledgements for indirect help to Anurag Acharya, David Meadows, Alex Verstak and Jimmy Wales. Not least, my thanks to Marguerite, Frances and Tim for their support, encouragement and ideas.

I have benefited from the online resources of University of New South Wales Library and the physical resources and staff of libraries at ACU, Albright Institute, Moore College, Rockefeller Museum, State Library of NSW, University of Sydney and UNSW.

Emma Brennan and her colleagues at Manchester University Press, including Alun Richards and Lianne Slavin, have brought a combination of enthusiasm and professionalism to this project, doubly appreciated as it was undertaken during the rigours and restrictions of a coronavirus lockdown.

I am especially grateful for the major contribution to this book from Ralph Footring, who has brought a wise, thoughtful and experienced eye to the text as its copy-editor, and has brought a constructive and flexible approach to the design and layout of the final volume.

For redrawing the maps in this book I am indebted to Don Shewan.
Sources for the data in the maps include:

15 The extent of Achaemenid control:
   www.iranchamber.com/history/achaemenids/achaemenids.php