Writing this book, I have been helped by many kind and generous people. Thank you to Tom Dark at Manchester University Press for arranging a meeting about this project, and persisting with it. I would also like to thank the anonymous peer reviewer from MUP for their astute and helpful criticisms. Various people have been very helpful teachers and colleagues. Over the years these include Jonathan Barry, Henry French, Anthony King, Tom Rice, James Rosbrook-Thompson, David Skinner, Matthias Varul and Jane Whittle. Since joining Cardiff University I have benefited greatly from conversations and advice from: Paul Atkinson, Finn Bowring, Ryan Davey, Sara Delamont, Robert Evans, Sophie Hallett, Jenny Hoolachan, William Housley, Jamie Lewis, Kate Moles, Shailen Nandy, Robin Smith, Gareth Thomas and Katharine Tyler.

A few chapters have had welcome opportunities to be shared and have received generous comments and helpful suggestions: parts of Chapter 2 were presented to the Contemporary Elites and Global Inequalities panel at the Royal Geographical Society Annual International Conference, August 2021. Thank you to Katie Higgins and Laura Clancy for including me on their panel, and for their comments. Chapter 4 was presented to the Department of Social Policy and Intervention’s seminar on Elites and Social Class at the University of Oxford, June 2022. Thank you to Aaron Reeves for the invitation, and the audience for their extremely stimulating response. An earlier version of what became Chapter 1 was presented to the departmental seminar at Loughborough University, May 2018; thank you to Thomas Thurnell-Read for the invitation. A version of Chapter 7 was presented to the BSA Merit or Meritocracy Conference, University of Newcastle, April 2018. Thank you to Geoff Payne for the invitation. to speak at Newcastle, and for commissioning a chapter on elites for his Social Divisions textbook. Chapter 7 benefited from the workshop with the Moscow Centre for Cultural Sociology in October 2021, where Andrea Voyer’s paper on Emily Post’s etiquette, as well as Phil Smith’s insights on Sloane Rangers, helped focus my themes. I would like to thank Peter York for our humorous conversation in 2015, as it helped shape both Chapter 7 and Chapter 8. Chapter 6 was read by some of the participants of the chapter, and I’m glad they saw the story about English literature and its relation to English society in favourable and relatable terms. Chapter 1 received extremely generous and helpful comments from Marilyn Strathern, Jeffrey Alexander, and Des Fitzgerald. I remain indebted to them. I would like to thank Marilyn Strathern for both permission for the chapter epigraph and her incredibly close reading of the chapter: to be told that I had properly understood After Nature and taken that wonderful, wonderful book in fruitful new directions was both a humbling compliment as well as welcome encouragement to continue with writing this book outright.

 Appropriately for a book about fathers and sons, I could not have written this book without the help and support of a woman. I owe everything to Julia Carter.
