Acknowledgements

This book was made possible by the collaboration of a great many people. Above all, un fuerte abrazo a Julio Medem for his time, candour and generosity. Special thanks are also due to Jesús Robles and Maria Silveyro of Ocho y Medio, Madrid, for their kindness, support and collaboration. Thanks also to Silvia Cotino Estornell and the marketing department of Sogecine-Sogepaq. All of the interviewees in this book gave generously of their time and hospitality and afforded me great honour. Saludos de nuevo a Javier Aguirresarobe, Iván Aledo, Teresa Asisi, Fernando Bovaira, Fernando de Garcillán, Kiko de la Rica, Carmelo Gómez, Silvia Gómez, Ione Hernández, Alberto Iglesias, Nancho Novo, Emma Suárez and Koldo Zuazua. Many thanks are also due to my student and teacher Helen Jones, who helped to shape the manuscript in a great many ways, to Isabel Santaolalla whose insightful writing and thoughts on Medem were a major influence on this book, and to Owen Evans, who not only carried out invaluable research on my behalf but was always good for coffee and advice. Thanks also to Silvia Gómez for welcoming me into Alicia Produce and our mutual friend Celia Valenciano for her gracious and valued collaboration. Gracias también a Caridad Iglesias Arroyo and to Fernando Carricajo Garrido for making Madrid my second home; Matthew Frost and Jonathan Bevan of Manchester University Press; series editors Nuria Triana Toribio and Andy Willis; Paul Smith of Metro-Tartan for inviting me to provide notes and commentary on the DVDs of Medem's films and Louise Anderson and Geoff Andrew for their invitation to curate a season of Basque cinema for the National Film Theatre in 2004. I would also like to thank the following colleagues and friends who supported me with their interest and collaboration: Elaine Canning, Tom Charity, Paul Cooke, María Delgado, Peter William Evans, Jennifer Green, Graeme Harper, Mostyn Jones, Raquel Linares, Alan O'Leary, Victoria Pastor, Alfredo Santamaría, John Sundholm, Eric Thau, Kevin Williams, Rhys Williams and Paddy Woodworth. Many people assisted me in the research of this book with contacts and information, including María José Ferrer, Elvira Herreira, Sonia Lozano and Verónica Roldán Bistagne.

Thanks also to the British Academy for their invaluable research grant, the University of Wales at Swansea for the sabbatical and to the Arts and Humanities Research Council for their granting of research leave during 2004. This book would not have been possible without their support.

And finally, mil gracias a Esther Santamaría Iglesias, who put up with it all, who transcribed endless hours of interviews and stood my research absences as stoically as she weathered my writing of the book, who listened and prompted, argued and inspired, all tirelessly and good-humouredly.

Rob Stone